Hosted annually by the International Code Council \(ICC\), the contest celebrates Building Safety Month and encourages communities to showcase new or renovated buildings that improve the quality of life for residents. This year's video prompt, "tell us about a new or updated building that benefits your community," invited participants to share stories of how safe, resilient and thoughtfully designed buildings serve their communities.

The winning video was produced through a partnership between the City of Winter Park's Building & Permitting Services Department, Communications Department and Winter Park Library. The video highlighted the library's role as a vibrant community gathering space while emphasizing the importance of thoughtful design in creating facilities that serve residents for generations.
